APOLLO WILL WIN CHIEF EVENT.

Hetman for the Junk Plate.

TO-DAY'S SELECTIONS.

[By "Wombat"]

A fine day is all that is required to make the concluding day of the second Extra Race Meeting a success.

If no more rain falls the course will be found in the best of galloping order, and the fields promise to be of satisfactory strength.

The first New Aggregate Stakes, six furlongs, promises to be a good thing for Apollo after his first day's success, and the short distance should suit this fast pony to a nicety.

Hetman, who received a severe drubbing from Apollo on Saturday, will have an easy task to win the Junk Bay Plate if he is not started in the big event. Glenegles will be a big danger in this event, as he was galloping when he finished second to Zorhan on the first day of the present meeting.

The handicap events present a very formidable array of talent which will be hard to pick from, and a wide range of betting will be seen in these events.

Mr. Alves, the handicapper, has given two ponies in the Canterbury Park Handicap the light weight of 110 lb. each, to carry which is, I believe, the lightest weight ever carried in an official race on our local race course.

CAR IN FLAMES.

A Salomon motor car was completely burned out on the Shek-O Road on Saturday night.

It was being driven to town by Mr. C. T. Simpson at about 8.30 p.m., when the lights suddenly failed.

Stopping the car, Mr. Simpson got out to try to fix the lights. As soon as he opened the bonnet flames shot out and he was just able to jump out of the way before the flames enveloped the car.

CONSTABLE AND A CHICKEN.

As the result of a report made to the Police by a cobbler named Lai Kam, an Indian Police Constable has been placed under arrest on a charge of larceny.

According to the cobbler, he was waiting for the ferry at Hungshom when he alleges he saw the constable take a chicken from a large basket which he (the cobbler) was engaged to carry. He placed it in a smaller basket, and hid it behind a nearby flower stall.

BRITAIN YIELDS TO INDIA'S DEMANDS.

Declaration by Moslem's President.

PLEA FOR UNITY.

New Delhi, Yesterday.

"The British are willing to accept 80 per cent. of India's demand forthwith," declared M. Shaikat Ali, presiding over the All-India Moslem Conference. He hoped that Hindus would now accept the Moslems' demands. "Let the Indian States and Hindus and Moslems put their heads together and present a united demand to the British people," he urged.

The Begum Mohamed Ali, chairwoman of the Reception Committee, appealed to Moslem women to discard the veil and enter public life.

The Viceroy later called an informal conference of prominent Moslem leaders who are now in Delhi. The conversations were private and lasted for 90 minutes. —Reuter.

DROP IN SILVER.

NOT A CHIEF CAUSE OF WORLD DEPRESSION.

New York, Yesterday.

The drop in silver is not among the important causes of the world depression, according to the Bankers G. M. P. Murphy and Company, who suggest that a rise in price might cause China more hardship than had resulted from the drastic decline.

White House Denial.

Washington, Yesterday.

In connection with Mr. Arentz's statement, officials at the White House categorically deny that President Hoover intends to summon a conference of administrative officials, as he feels that the United States has little interest in the problem apart from its bearing on world trade. —Reuter's American Service.

crease. The general death rate was greatest at the two extremes of life and lowest among young adults. These adverse conditions were responsible for an increase in the infantile death-rate from 65 in 1928—the lowest recorded—to 74 per 1,000 live births.

Attention is drawn to the excessive mortality of illegitimate children at this age, the rate per million live births being 9,691 against 1,288 for legitimate infants, while the rates from violence and neglect at birth were 6,312 and 98 respectively.

Deaths from cancer numbered 56,896, the highest number recorded for any one year.

The birth-rate was 16.3 or 0.4 per 1,000 less than in 1928, and was the lowest recorded since the establishment of civil registration.

It is stated that the fall in birth rates in England and Wales "is the more serious since the position of this country in relation to that of others was already a low one before the War, while to-day it is lower than any above England and Wales, Norway, Sweden and Switzerland." The marriage rate—15.8—was the highest since 1921, from which it is "assumed that the burden and responsibility of marriage under modern conditions presses no more heavily upon the newly wedded than it did 20 or 30 years ago, notwithstanding the prevailing economic depression."

MR. GAVIN JONES & HIS CRITICS.

Round-Table Attitude Explained.

Bombay, Feb. 6.

Mr. T. Gavin Jones, one of the European delegates to the Round-Table Conference, who returned by the s.s. Viceroy of India to-day, delivered an important speech at a special meeting of the Bombay European business community in defence of his attitude, and that of his colleagues, at the Conference on the transference of responsibility to the Centre.

He began by expressing anxiety to engender goodwill and understanding between his fellow countrymen and other communities and to secure unity among the European community in India, both of which were so necessary for the future of India.

Mr. Gavin Jones pointed out that the Conference had not merely to register preconceived views but to explore the possibilities of arriving at a consensus of agreement between all parties in India and in Britain and to arrive at decisions in the best interests of their community and of India as a whole.

He expressed surprise at the attitude adopted, in certain quarters, towards him and his colleagues in regard to the matter of the transfer of responsible Government to a Central Legislature, and declared that, on this question, he had been always consistent in his views.

He recalled his amendment to a resolution of the European Association at its meeting in August last, proposing that no responsibility should be transferred to a Central Legislature unless and until an all-India Federation could be evolved.

The Round-Table Conference opened with a declaration from the Indian States that they were willing to federate with British India. This changed the whole situation, which had been viewed from a different angle to that taken by the Simon Commission and the Government of India dispatch and the European community in August last.

Sir T. B. Sapru, who was followed by Lord Reading and other speakers from India, showed they were unanimous in their desire for the transfer of responsibility.

He then agreed with Lord Reading and accepted the proposal that a substantial measure of responsibility should be transferred to the legislature, provided that a really workable constitution was evolved in which the Indian States would be included, that a Legislature was created in which all interests would be represented and that the stable body politics could prevail.

Also, provided that all necessary safeguards were introduced into the constitution, and that constituent States in British India were established. This statement was made with the full approval of his colleagues and advisers.

Position of Isolation.

Proceeding Mr. Gavin Jones said that to have taken a non possumus attitude, and to have opposed the transfer of responsibility under any conditions, would have laid them open to the charge of opposing an All-India Federation.

To have done so, he declared, would not only have been unstatesmanlike but futile, and would have placed them in a position of barren isolation.

He added that, apart from that, it was the only statesmanlike conclusion, considering the unanimity of the Indian delegates, Lord Reading's carefully considered change of outlook, supported by the Liberal Party delegates, and presumably by the Labour Party delegates, and in the face of Lord Peel's willingness to consider the same.

EMPTY CRADLES.

MORE MARRIAGES BUT BIRTH RATE LOWEST ON RECORD.

The Registrar-General's statistical Review of England and Wales for 1929 discloses many interesting and surprising facts.

The mortality rate of 13.4 per 1,000 of the population was 16 per cent. above that for 1928, and was "much the highest since mortality was swollen in 1918 by the great influenza pandemic." The increase, it is stated, was unusually sudden.

It is stated that 20,084 victims of influenza were recorded in 1929, coming first among the causes of death chiefly responsible for the in-

Unusual Incident at Pokfulam.

WOUNDED IN FACE.

An unusual accident occurred in Pokfulam yesterday. The victim was a Chinese named Wong Fong (52), who lives in Pokfulam village.

He was engaged in worshipping the graves of his ancestors on the hill above Kai Lung Wan (Chicken Basket Bay), when he was struck on the right side of the face by a pellet from a shot gun. The firer of the gun was Au Keng-lau, of the Tung Lee Ship-building Co., 332, Canton Road, Kowloon, who is the holder of a game licence and was out game-shooting in Pokfulam.

The West Point Police were informed and they removed the wounded man to the Government Civil Hospital.

The entire population, picturesquely dressed in native costume, turned out at dawn to meet the steamer bringing M. It is the work of the Greek sculptor, Michel Tombros, and was erected through the efforts of an international committee comprising 200 European and American literary men. —Reuter.

HORRORS OF 'QUAKE

OUTBREAK OF RABIES IN

STRICKEN CITY.

LOOTERS SHOT.

Managua, Yesterday.

An outbreak of rabies has added to the horrors being experienced by the refugees in the stricken city. No sooner had the miserable victims of the earthquake been assured that they were not going to become the prey of bandits from the hills, than rabies appeared, and is threatening to spread, through the scarcity of water and intense heat.

Patrols are scouring the streets shooting all the dogs they see, and are followed by lorries, which collect the carcasses and bury them. Sharp shots are therefore ringing out all the time, but they do not always indicate the despatch of animals, as it is reported that Marines have so far summarily shot 20 looters.

TRAIN WRECKED.

GUNMAN'S $40,000 FUNERAL.

$20,000 mausoleum for "Wine Racket-King."

A tremendous procession of 81 hired motor-cars, 40 of them filled with wreaths and others with mourners, followed by almost as many private motor-cars, moved through the streets of the Bronx, New York, to the church of Our Lady of Mt. Carmel and then to Woodlawn Cemetery.

A chance visitor might have supposed this was the funeral of a great and good man, who had died peacefully in the fullness of his years. Actually the body in the solid bronze coffin with silver drop sides, which cost $15,000 was that of Joseph Catania, aged 29, better known in the underworld as "Joe the Baker," whose reign as the "Wine Racket King" was terminated abruptly by a burst of buckshot from the sawn-off shot guns of a party in ambush.

The funeral of Dion O'Banion in Chicago, by which the underworld has gauged tributes to its departed leaders, paled beside that of Catania. Dominick Scocozza, the chief of the four undertakers who were required to supervise the rites, declared "it was a much bigger funeral than O'Banion's. It cost all of $40,000."

This estimate did not include the $20,000 mausoleum in which the gangster's body will be placed as soon as it is completed, but only the elaborate floral tributes, the ornate coffin, and the long procession of motor-cars.

Forty detectives mingled with the crowd lest Catania's friends should seek summary revenge on his assassins. They deftly patted the hips of all men joining the procession, but no weapons were found.

While grief was manifest in wailing and tears, listening detectives heard no reproaches against the murderers, a point on which there seemed a conspiracy of silence.

JUMP TO STREET.

SEQUEL TO AN ALLEGED FIGHT.

The West Point Police removed to the Government Civil Hospital on Saturday a Chinese named Chu Yau-chai (27) suffering from injuries to his face and body.

The man, who lives at 5, Portland Street, Yaumati, was stated to have jumped into the street from the second floor of 16, Belcher Street, Kennedy Town, in the course of a fight in the house.

The Police are detaining four men in connection with the affair.

A loaded revolver and a knife were found in the flat when the Police visited it.

MORE ALPINE DISASTERS.

Seven Killed in Series of Avalanches.

Munich, Feb. 23.

Three new avalanche disasters, costing seven lives, are reported from various parts of the Alpine districts.

A party of skiers was overtaken by an avalanche while leaving the Brandkopfattel. Fortunately other skiers were immediately at hand and rescued six out of the seven men buried.

Another avalanche, thundering down from the Patscherkofel near Innsbruck, buried five skiers, of whom three were killed, while one man succeeded in extricating himself and one woman, who had broken her legs.

Finally, in South Tyrol, an avalanche swept over the huts of a small settlement in the Sarnol Alps. Here five men were saved out of eight who disappeared over a precipice.

An entire family, consisting of father, mother and five little children, were buried under the snow, but, after hours of strenuous effort, were extricated and revived. A column of 70 men is still engaged in rescue operations.

Reports reaching here from the Austrian, Swiss and Bavarian Alps state that 48 hours has been the heaviest for the past 40 years.

In addition to Zermatt and Cortina (Dampiez) are now completely cut off from the world. In Andermatt a company of Swiss infantry reservists is now up.

The Schellenberg railway line was partly destroyed by avalanches.

U.S. WANT BIG BATTLESHIPS.

Tonnage Essential for Strategy.

GREAT CRUISING RADIUS

Washington, Yesterday.

Admiral Pratt, Chief of Naval operations, indicated to-day that the Navy Department were carefully considering the question of the tonnages and gun calibres.

It is gathered unofficially that the Navy Department still considers that battleships of 35,000 tons are essential for American strategy, owing to the combination of striking power and great cruising radius. —Reuter's American Service.

NOVELIST DIES IN PENURY.

Willy's Quips, Puns and Personalities.

Willy, the critic and gay novelist, a brilliant figure of artistic Paris before the War, died at the age of 71, of an apoplectic attack. Two and a half years ago he was knocked over by a motor-car, and he never really recovered from the results of the accident.

Willy, whose real name was Henry Gauthier-Villars, was the son of the well known publisher of scientific works of that name. His age of celebrity coincided with that when all French men of letters and art were out "epater les bourgeois."

He quickly made a name for himself by his quips, puns, and personalities. He fought several duels; that, too, belonged to the epoch.

But Willy not only had a biting pen and a witty eye; he was also a musical critic of serious work, though his criticisms in "Gil Blas" were wrapped up under the alluring title of "Lettres a l'Ouvreuse."

Flat-Brimmed Top Hat.

He married a daughter of Colonel Colette, and she, under his tuition, began to write, but called herself by her father's name. The Claudine series — "Claudine a l'Ecole," "Claudine a Paris," "Claudine en Menage" — by Willy and Colette fascinated and scandalised Paris.

Everyone saw in Claudine the portrait of Colette and that of Willy in Maugis. When their marriage was dissolved Colette revealed herself as what she still is — one of the finest writers in France.

The War destroyed Willy's world. He had been a striking figure in it with his black, pointed beard and the flat-brimmed top hat that he designed himself; but when the War began and after it ended no one wanted eccentricity of person or hat any more than they wanted Willy's peculiar type of caustic wit.

Most of the fighting years Willy spent on the Riviera, contributing small things to small local papers. His return to Paris spell for him poverty and insignificance, and he who had been one of the kings of the boulevards and the Quartier Latin spent his last years in an ineffectual struggle against complete want.

EUROPEAN WARDER ACQUITTED.

Returns From Home to Meet Theft Charge.

THE TRIANGLE AGAIN!

George Cartel, a European Prisoners' Warder, who stood charged with the theft of $200 and a suit case belonging to Mrs. Kesina Axe, was recently acquitted by the Additional District Judge, Mr. J. L. MacFall, in Penang, says the Straits Echo.

When hearing was resumed in the morning, Mr. C. R. Samuel who appeared for the accused with Mr. E. W. Gibson, moved that the accused be discharged and acquitted as the prosecution had failed to establish the charge against him.

His Honour, however, called upon the accused to make his defence.

Met in 1928.

Accused stated that he was a married man and had a child. He first met complainant towards the end of 1928 at time when his wife was away in Ipoh. A year later he contemplated separating from his wife and in fact a Deed of separation was drawn. He went to live with complainant, who knew he was a married man, and spent $250 out of his salary of $370 on house-keeping.

He obtained leave in January, 1930, and was due to sail on May 31 together with his wife and child. He did not tell Mrs. Axe that he was leaving as he feared she might create a scene. At that time she had told him that she was "fed up" with Penang and wanted to go back to Shanghai. She suggested to him that he should accompany her and he agreed although he did not mean to do so.

Sold Her Car.

On May 30, he slept at complainant's house in Burmah Road. The following day he sold her car for her and handed her the full proceeds thereof when he returned home at about 3 p.m. An hour later he left the house saying he was going on "night duty" and went to the Pin Kung Hotel where his wife and child were staying. The boat was due to sail at midnight, and he went on board at about 11 p.m. He did not go to the complainant's house that night nor did he steal any of her money. The suit case produced belonged to him. It was bought for complainant and used to be in his quarters.

He was first informed of the charge against him by the Colonial Office about three months before he sailed from England. Later he was informed that a warrant had been out for his arrest and that his passage would be booked for him if wished to come and meet the charge. He replied that he was prepared to meet the charge.

After further evidence accused was acquitted and discharged.

ECONOMIC MISSION

CHANCES FOR BRITISH

ENGINEERING.
FRIENDLY DISPOSITION.
London, Saturday

Sir Ernest Thompson's Economic Mission to the Far East returned to-day after six months study and hopes to report to the

The mission undertook to report to the Government first, and therefore there will be no revelations beforehand.

The Manchester Guardian states that the Mission was deeply impressed by the possibilities for British engineering as regards electrification and water supply, providing the purchasing power of China increases.

The Mission found a considerable anti-Japanese feeling in China, but a friendly disposition towards the British.

"Come to Bigger"

"Everything possible was done both in Japan and China to facilitate our work. We would not have got through our work in this time without the assistance given. We are now able to present our report to the Government immediately."

Asked whether the recommendations were likely to benefit Manchester, he replied that Manchester seems to be in a bad way. "They have let things go to pieces since I left."

He stated that the cotton export would be a separate one.

Mr. Duxbury, ex-President of the United Textile Factory Workers' Association, said: "We are hopeful that new avenues of progress for Lancashire will be found as a result of our work."

BOYCOTT EFFECTS.

The figures which are available for India's trade during the last year reveal several significant facts and a study of the influences which determine them serves to bring out numerous interesting points, says the Pioneer.

The general trade depression, or which 1930 was notorious, is reflected in the all round decline in the value of the total exports from India fell by twenty-two per cent and the value of the imports from India by twenty-six per cent. This is one reaction on the other is clear

The most important decline of imports was that in textile statistics issued by Bombay mill owners show that imports of piece goods into India fell by very nearly half, and the major portion of the loss fell on Lancashire.

Against this, India's cotton exports dropped, causing great hardship to the growers. Yet in considering these figures, we must not neglect to take into consideration the operation of the world-wide fall in prices. The effect of this on India was to lower wholesale prices by levels by 18 per cent. It will be immediately clear that this would account for the greater part of the decline in the value of foreign trade.

As usual, the direction of foreign trade shows some variations, and last year it was more markedly a section of traders. This resulted in Great Britain's share of Indian trade declining by two Woolens.

There have been one or two outstanding sale of low continental wools and a few miscellaneous lots of Worsteds have with difficulty been brought to book. For the most part, the dealers' ideas of prices are considerably below replacement cost. If the new season's requirements are not negotiated in the near future, the shipment duty will become acute.

THE FINE ART
OF RELAXATION

In the days of Thackeray and the coffee-houses when leisurely conversation and relaxation were religiously cultivated, "THREE CASTLES" played no small part in the lives of those giants of the past. And right today, "THREE CASTLES" is still the choice companion and friend of those who have learned the fine art of making the most of moments of leisure.

HAIG MEMORIAL STATUE.

Protest by ex-H.Q. Officers.

"UNWORTHY OF HIM."

The Army, Navy and Air Force Gazette is informed that an official protest against the adoption of Mr. Hardiman's designs for the Haig Statue is to be made by officers who served at G.H.Q., France, during the war. A circular has been sent to officers who served at G.H.Q. which states:—

It is evident from the correspondence which has lately been appearing in the Times and other newspapers, that there is a serious danger that the national memorial to Lord Haig will be in a form which the great majority of those who served under him that every effort should be made to avoid this, and that a protest signed by as many as possible of the officers who served at G.H.Q., France, during the war, most of whom can speak from some personal acquaintance with Lord Haig, should carry weight with those responsible for the selection of the statue.

It is to be hoped that this protest from those officers of all ranks who had the best opportunity to know Lord Haig personally, added to that of the thousands of other private persons who have in various ways signified their deep disapproval of both—and especially the latter—of Mr. Hardiman's designs will be effective.

Find Another Artist.

It would seem that the Committee appointed to approve designs submitted can, with one exception, have little notion of how works of art are conceived. The idea of asking an artist (or sculptor) to modify his original design seems, quite frankly, ridiculous and fair neither to the unfortunate craftsman concerned nor to the nation. Mr. Hardiman has presented his design for approval and it has been universally condemned. He could not, even if he would, change himself into a Munnings or a Watts, and so the logical process would be to recompense him handsomely for his labours with suitable expressions of regret and find another artist more competent for the task of designing a last memorial to our great leader.

Unacceptable.

It would be vulgar and cheap to add further opprobrium to that already heaped upon one who, after all, has done his level best within his limitations to carry out the work. But the sooner it is realised by the Powers that Be that Mr. Hardiman's design is unacceptable the better for all concerned. Let us have a presentation of the Field-Marshal in his habit as he lived, mounted upon a horse that would not shame him, not a hybrid between Lord Haig and a Roman Emperor mounted upon a creature that bears more resemblance to the hippogriff of legend than to the thoroughbred horse of fact. It was the simplicity and humanity of Haig that made him the leader he was. Why therefore portray him as a pseudo-conqueror of the Roman statue school?

The Committee must reconsider their decision, realise that they have blundered, and carry out their duty to the nation by seeing to it that a fitting statue, agreeable to those who knew and loved the Field-Marshal (however much it may offend Chelsea and its so-called artists), shall be erected for all time to stand as a memorial to a great soldier and a great gentleman.

LESSON SERMON.

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, HONG KONG.

"Unreality" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, April 5.

The Golden Text was—"The things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal." (2 Cor. 4, 18).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible:—"In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. All things were made by him; and without him was not anything made that was made." (John 1, 1, 3).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health, with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy:—"Everything good or worthy, God made. Whatever is valueless or baneful, He did not make,—hence its unreality. In the Science of Genesis we read He saw everything which He had made," and, behold, it was very good." The corporeal senses declare otherwise; and if we give the same heed to the history of error as to the records of truth, the Scriptural record of sin and death favours the false conclusion of the material senses. FRANCONIA STORY.

Looking For The Phya Thai.

The following is true and is vouched for by a Bangkok resident who saw it happen. The scene is the outside of the Oriental Hotel and Pop and Momma, obviously thoroughly tired out after several hours of solid sight-seeing, have been landed there by the taxi-driver instead of at the Phya Thai. The following conversation then ensues:—

Pop (leaning out and wearily addressing the watchman): Say, tell that guy to go to the Pyre Teer.

Momma (game to the end): Not Pyre Teer, Gus—Peer Teel.

Pop (with utter weariness): Aw, hell, tell him to go there anyway.

MAURETANIA AGROUND.

Fast In Mud For Over Three Hours.

The giant Cunard liner Mauretania, with Captain Malcolm Campbell on board, grounded in the mud off the West Barmbles, near Cowes, at 5.45 while on her way to Southampton from New York.

It was not until 9.15 that she refloated. Efforts to move the vessel were unavailing, and a wireless message was sent for assistance. Four tugs responded. Two of them pushed with their bows amidship of the liner, while the other two tried to pull her with steel hawsers.

Later a tender took off the passengers, and shortly afterwards the Mauretania was got off and steamed into port.

CRICKET SAILORS GO IN.

Heavy Scoring Expected At Dinner.

Gravesend, Feb. 22.
If any ship steams up the misty river past the Clarendon Hotel here at three bells of the last dog watch to-day, the skipper must be careful not to get off his course when he hears extraordinary sounds.

For about that hour sea chancies will be sung by scores of sailors at the dinner of the United Pilots' Cricket Club.

I asked the captain of the team about this cricket business, writes an Evening News correspondent. "I don't think we have ever won a cricket match, but that doesn't matter," he said. "We have a good game every time we play. Our difficulty is raking up an eleven."

"We play on Mondays, because it's our freest day. Two or three of us get together, and with a bag full of coppers we telephone either until the coppers run out or until we get as near as we can to a team."

"We are the world's worst team, because it's very seldom one set of eleven men ever play twelve together."

"Besides, we have all been 20 years at sea. If they had got us before we went to sea twenty years ago, one of us might have been a Hobbs!"

"We have no difficulty in getting fixtures, because the batsmen of opposing teams are pretty sure of making a century against us if they don't get tired."

"The sea has a disturbing effect on leg breaks and straight bowling, although if ever anyone of us does hit the ball it goes for a long journey."

"There are more than 200 of us in the club."

MONETARY PROBLEM.

The presence in our midst of three currency experts must serve as the only excuse —
or explanation — for dealing with the monetary problem
on Easter Monday.

Speaking at the annual meeting of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, the Chairman, Mr.
Herbert W. Lee, spoke about the need for immediate action in the realm of finance. He remarked that whilst we all realise the intricacies of this matter, where experts disagree it would be foolish for a layman to dogmatise.
But the business community,
while they may not be experts in the theory of money, are obliged to have a pretty good knowledge of commerce and the world's markets. Their view is a practical one and should carry weight. So far, said Mr. Lee, as he could interpret the mind of the average man in business, the situation as he sees it is something like this:

"The world slump is caused by the severe fall in prices. That fall might be explained either by a surplus of world production or by weakness of the monetary system. Although one or two products may appear to be super-abundant in over-abundant supply,
it is absurd to suppose that there is a real surplus of production of everything, especially when we know of thousands in China, India, and even U.S.A., struggling on without the necessities of life. The general fall in prices cannot be explained by the incapacity of the world to consume,
and must be caused at least in part by the failure of the monetary machine to distribute the world's products to the consumers who want them. Many of the experts admit this much or nearly as much. Most of them, however, go on to say that the problem is international, and that only by international action can a remedy be found. Personally, I am not prepared to agree with that view. The persistence of the present low prices is a disaster to Britain, and if we can do nothing for ourselves in such an emergency, then our future is indeed black. When we returned to the Gold Standard in 1925 we acted alone. Why was it not then said that only international action could avail to bring back stability into international exchange? Our action at that time undoubtedly set on foot a series of reactions in the other countries which brought first stability in exchanges and secondly a deflation of world values. I am convinced that the action by Britain could now be taken which would react in other countries and would tend to bring prices throughout the world to a proper level. Currency theories should be our servants,

not our masters.

"The delay of the Government
in dealing with the problem is one of the most regrettable events of their term of office. They shelved the responsibility to the Macmillan Commission, and that body having long ago heard all the evidence it required, is now holding the nation to ransom whilst it continues its secret debates. I cannot see how action could possibly make things worse than they are at present, and I think the Chamber was never more justified than when it urged strongly for an immediate decision. The Bank of England is good enough sometimes to tell us how to run our trade, and they cannot complain if we reply by suggesting that half our troubles are caused by their own inability to run the monetary system of which they are the chief authors and custodians."

Some of the foregoing observations could well be applied to this Colony. We recall how, when the dollar first began to drop in the vicinity of 1/6, the Government was advised to consider the feasibility of stabilisation of our currency. It shelved that responsibility. Too late it appointed a Currency Commission whose full report, with all the evidence adduced, has never yet seen the light of day. It has been holding the Colony to ransom whilst it dilly-dallied with the problem

and became itself almost panicky
—to the extent of piling on increased duties here and new duties there, whilst it awaits
the deliberations of the Retrenchment Committee to consider how the Budget can be balanced. To continue the simile, the Government may be good enough to tell us how to run our trade, on lines set forth by Government Ordinances and regulations, and it cannot complain if we reply that all our troubles today are caused by its own inability to control the monetary system of which it undoubtedly is the guardian through the banks operating under local statute. "Currency theories should be our servants, not our masters." Why await international action? Why await the next move by China? Why not put our own house in order
before the mischief gets completely out of hand?

News in Brief.

yesterday was 66 degrees. The humidity at 10 a.m. was 68 and at 4 p.m. 78.

The case against the European,

tempting to steal a letter addressed

A Chinese named Yau Mo (41),
of 42, Kowloon City Road, ground floor, was alleged to have attempted suicide on Saturday by jumping
into the harbour from the Wing Lok wharf. He was rescued by boat people, who handed him over to the Police.

On Saturday a Chinese woman named Chan Wai-chen alias Chan Tak-hing (21) was removed to the Government Civil Hospital suffering from opium poisoning, alleged to have been self-administered.
She died at 3.15 a.m. yesterday.
The woman, who lived at 1, Chinese conscious in Room No. 217 of the Lok Hoi Tung boarding house, 160, Connaught Road Central.

We understand that the "Kwong

important and valuable historical photographs, including those of the martyred revolutionary leader

when ready.

NEW UNION CHURCH

OFFICIAL OPENING BY H.E. ON FRIDAY.

REMARKABLE GESTURE.

His Excellency the Governor,
Sir William Peel, K.C.M.G.,
K.B.E., will perform the official opening of the new Union Church, Kowloon, which has just been completed, on Friday, April 10,
the ceremony being timed to commence at 5.45 p.m.

In connection with the new Church, the Rev. J. Horace Johnston, the Minister, has called our attention to a very remarkable gesture of friendliness on the part of the neighbouring Church of England.

The Council of St. Andrew's Church heartily agreed to contribute some article towards the furnishing of the new Union Church, and, finding that there was need of a vestry table, are presenting both a table and chair,
as a token of their good will.

The happiest relations exist between the two Churches and there have been frequently interchange of courtesies between the Young People's Societies; but this official presentation from the one Church to the other is something quite exceptional and will not only be richly appreciated by the members of the Union Church, but will surely make a favourable impression upon all who hear of it, and show the world that the different denominations are not engaged in senseless rivalry but are fighting side by side the good fight of Faith.

LIGHT PLANES IN INDIA.

Aero Clubs' Subsidies Maintained.

AN APPEAL TO THE PUBLIC.

The Standing Finance Committee of the Assembly has accepted the proposal to continue for another year the grant of financial assistance to the four light aeroplane clubs at Karachi, Delhi, Calcutta and Bombay, and to the Aero Club
of India and Burma, says the Pioneer.

In the light of the broad hint thrown out last year, this result
must be regarded as satisfactory,
for the Committee have consistently taken up the attitude that the clubs cannot expect to receive a subsidy indefinitely, but that this latter would be gradually reduced until the clubs were left to stand on their own legs.

There is no prospect of any one of these institutions becoming self-sufficient in the near future; the stoppage of the grant would mean their going out of existence. This would be detrimental to the development of civil aviation in the country. It is, however, understandable, in the prevailing financial stringency, that the Finance Committee should regard this expenditure as a luxury.

In conceding the point for another year, it has made no provision for the two new flying clubs at Lahore and Madras. There appears to be no chance of additional support being available for any other club which may be formed.

In the circumstances, the only hope for the future financial stability of the flying club movement in India would appear to be the newly opened Irwin Fund. We hope that the influential appeals made on behalf of that fund will receive a generous response.

CHEAPER AIR MAILS

NEED OF BIG LONDON FIRMS.

Considerable dissatisfaction exists
among firms in the City of London
who trade with India and South America at the reply of the Postmaster-General to the deputation which waited upon him recently from the London Chamber of Commerce to urge the provision of cheaper air mails to those countries.
The feeling among them is that Mr. Lees-Smith has been influenced too much by departmental conservatism and a disinclination to initiate anything new in the postal service.
In support of this contention
they point out that the Postmaster-General, in his reply, said that "so far as the reduction of the minimum weight to 1/2 oz. was concerned,
while he would consider the proposal again, he felt it difficult to be enthusiastic about a suggestion
which, in his view, was only of importance in the case of one service,
and that not an Imperial service."

In this passage, it is urged, Mr.
Lees-Smith had only in mind the proposal so far as it concerned
South America, whereas commercial firms desire, and the deputation asked for, the application of the 1/2 oz. initial weight for air mail
letters to India as well as to South America.

Lighter Paper.
In India, as Sir Geoffrey Clarke emphasised, the public had readily adapted themselves to the use of equivalent of 1-5th oz. as the initial weight, and the commercial view in London is that the British public would quickly adapt themselves to the use of lighter paper and envelope falls in getting on as a player.
In fact, there are many golden opportunities for those who will take the time and trouble to search
throughout the country of 1/2 oz.
weights.

In relation to the proposal 1/2 oz.
initial weight for air mails to South America, the commentary is made that, while the Board of Trade and the Department of Overseas Trade are urging business firms to develop trade with that Continent, and particularly with Argentina (where the Prince of Wales will shortly open the exhibition at Buenos Aires), the Post Office is hindering commercial progress by forcing British firms to pay twice as much as their European rivals for the use of air mail services to South America. The French Aeropostale Company carries European letters of an initial weight of 5 grammes for 1s.
6d., the 13 days' time by using the same service, must pay 4s. 2d. for a minimum weight of 1/2 oz. British firms ironically ask how they can be expected to compete successfully with European rivals with such an economic handicap added to the already higher costs of British goods?

The effect of cheap air-mail facilities is shown in the increased receipts of the French Aeropostale Company, which have increased from £22,500 in 1928 to £160,000 for the first nine months of this year—a proof, it is asserted, that the lighter initial weight of 1/2 oz.
stimulates traffic and trade.

MEMORIAL ARCH IN NEW DELHI.

Indian Soldiers' Part in Great War.

HISTORY CALLED FOR.

It is well that India's new capital
should possess the simple and dignified memorial arch opened with impressive ceremony by the Viceroy to keep green in the memory of the present and future generations the great and noble part, which Indian soldiers played in the Great War, says the Pioneer. The ceremony serves to call attention to the fact that there is not in existence any comprehensive history of the doings of the Indian Army during the fateful years between 1914 to 1918.

Timely reference to the neglect of the duty of preparing such a history is made in one of the most recent and from India's point of view
one of the most important war
books recently published namely,
Sir Arnold Wilson's "Loyalties:
Mesopotamia, 1914-17." Sir
Arnold, himself an Indian Army officer, though he spent the greater part of his career in the Political Department in Mesopotania and Persia, eloquently describes some of the achievements of the Indian Army in the Mesopotania campaign.

Gallant Sikhs.
In one passage after mentioning
the astonishing gallantry of the 36th and 45th Sikhs in the neighbourhood of the Hai he goes on to say: "The records of such deeds
by Indian regiments could be multiplied a hundredfold; they are enshrined in the memories already growing dim, of the few survivors,
only a handful of whom are now serving; they are to be found in the ponderous official histories of each front; they are in some cases, described in detail in regimental histories, some of which have been translated into the language of the regiment."

But there is no record of the doings of the Indian Army as a whole, though Colonel Ayia extorted
a promise from the India Office in 1916 that the possibility of compiling such a history would be examined.

Those who have at heart the future of India and the fostering of mutual trust between the British and the Indian peoples might even now consider whether it could not be done

The record of India's military achievements during these critical years might help to focus public attention upon an aspect of Indian polity which is apt to be forgotten
in the noise and dust of political discussions; these achievements, if only as a guide to future potential-ities, can by no means be overlooked.

The excellent suggestion that Sir Arnold Wilson makes will, we hope, be duly considered by high authorities.

WHY BECOME A MOVIE STAR?

When the average movie-mad
man or woman goes to Hollywood,
it is with just one purpose in mind—
to try to become a movie star. The reports of tremendous salaries paid to players, together with the fact that the name of a movie star is a
by-word in millions of homes all over the world, completely overshadows the possibilities of dozens of other lucrative positions in the motion picture industry. Aside from the possible second or third choice as director or scenario writer, not one in a thousand newcomers to Hollywood ever thinks of trying for another position if he or she fails in getting on as a player.
Yet, there are many golden opportunities for those who will
take the time and trouble to search for them. These opportunities are varied, as a list of the occupations of those who make their living at the studios would show.

Inside the studio itself there are such vocations as dress designer,
location man, set designer, script
clerk, cameraman, film cutter, secretary to a star, publicist, technical man, wardrobe mistress,
seamstress, title writer, research
worker, story reader, film developer,
etc. Of course all those jobs require experience of some kind, but the amount of ex-players who worked themselves into the above positions is surprising.

AL JOLSON IN "SAY IT WITH SONGS."

A "PALE FACE."

Al Jolson was seen and heard in the Queen's Theatre yesterday in his talkie "Say It With Songs," companion picture to the popular "Singing Fool." Al is supported in the picture by Davey Lee as his son and Marian Nixon as his wife, and as a radio broadcasting artiste sings three songs with the usual catch in his voice which appeals to many.

Al appears as a "pale face" and somehow one cannot reconcile oneself to it, and would rather see him with a black face. The most appealing song in the picture is "Little Pal," which is already well known. Jolson's records having preceded the picture here by at least 18 months. The songs "Used to You" and "I'm in Seventh Heaven" is not up to the standard of such Jolson songs as "Rainbow Round My Shoulder," but the song that he sings in jail, "Why Can't You," and "Little Pal," compare well with "Sonny Boy," which, however, is his best song yet heard in Hong Kong.

The vehicle for the songs is the well-known Jolson paternal love for his son. The eternal triangle is stretched into a quadrangle in the story — Al, his wife, the studio manager, and a doctor who had hopes of marrying Marion Nixon until Al came on the scene. Al kills the studio manager and "goes up the river" for a spell. His wife gets work as a nurse in the doctor's office. Al is madly jealous and tells her when she visits him in jail that he is through with her. She is undecided whether or not to get a divorce and marry the doctor, when Al comes out of jail. He makes no effort to make up with his wife until their son is run over by a motor car. The accident brings the family together again.

Davey Lee showed himself a clever little actor when, after the accident, he was supposed to be paralysed and unable to speak. He played up to it very well.

"VAGABOND LOVER."

Forty selected dancing beauties, the Radio Pictures chorus, the Connecticut Yankees orchestra and more than 300 formally attired players, appear in one elaborate scene in Radio Pictures' "The Vagabond Lover," the Rudy Vallee vehicle in the Central Theatre showing for the last time to-day.

The set, an outdoor garden scene, covering an entire stage in the RKO Studios, represents an orphan's benefit sponsored by society people. More than a dozen microphones were used for the recording and six cameras for the photography.

Rudy Vallee, who makes his first feature-length all-talking, singing picture debut, sings three songs during this sequence, interspersed with popular tunes of his orchestra and ballet numbers by the dancers. Appearing in the cast with Rudy Vallee is the charming Sally Blane, Radio Pictures' starlet and Wampas Baby Star of 1929.

"FLIGHT"

The Columbia production unit made a permanent improvement to the wilderness outside of San Diego, California, when they were on location there during the filming of "Flight" the all-talking epic of the air, coming to the Central Theatre to-morrow.

Thirty-two miles from San Diego, it was necessary to find a flying field near a swamp. There was no such field. Accordingly, a crew was sent out to locate the necessary piece of ground. Although the spot was located, it seemed impossible to make a flying field out of it. The difficulties seemed insurmountable. A bridge was essential to get to this spot. The heavy trucks, sound wagons and equipment had to be moved there. Immediately construction began, and in less than ten hours a twenty-foot bridge, capable of carrying a load of eight tons, was thoroughly built. This bridge remains at La Mesa, for the use of the poor old man, others, a gift from Columbia Pictures Corporation. The agricultural turists and fruit growers of the neighbourhood offered their thanks to the Columbia crew for building what had been a necessity in that section.

"Flight" was made with the co-operation of the United States Marine Corps and is technically perfect in every detail. Jack Holt, Lila Lee, and Ralph Graves play the leading roles. Frank R. Capra directed.

"THE SEA BAT."

"The Sea Bat," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's new marine melodrama which is showing on Thursday in the Queen's Theatre should rank high with that large group of people who like their drama mixed with novelty and interesting detail. Wesley Ruggles, the director, has produced a picture which is a personification of those words, with excitement added. Those who thought there was no new situation or "menace" in melodrama are invited to glance over this original story by Dorothy Yost.

Sea bats, those giant rays weighing two tons or more, which infect tropic waters, are the monsters who supply the excitement of this tale. When one of them folds Nila Aether in its heavy wings, crushing him to death, it starts a war of reprisal in which the tangled romances of Charles Bickford, Raquel Torres and John Miljan form a dramatic overture.

AUDACIOUS OFFENCE.

Ten Years' For Killing A "Poor Old Man."

Yap Thong was found guilty of culpable homicide by a special jury and sentenced to 10 years' rigorous imprisonment by Mr. Justice Whitley at the Singapore Assizes, when the hearing was continued of the case in which he was charged with the murder of Tay Cheok-seng in a rubber plantation near the 9½ milestone, Seletar Road, on August 28, last year.

In a short address before the accused gave his evidence, Mr. Barrow said there was no evidence on which conviction for murder could be found. He went on to tell the jury of their responsibility and the punishment that awaited the accused if he was found guilty.

His Lordship said that there was ample evidence on which the jury could find the man guilty. The doctor's evidence showed that there was a most violent assault on the man.

The Judge: Mr. Barrow, you must not terrorise the jury by telling them of their responsibility and the punishment.

Mr. Barrow: I am not trying to terrorise the jury. I submit that I can tell them of their power.

"Just Hit and Run."

The accused, then stated from the dock that Tay Too and Ho Thean Chye asked him to go for a walk. He was, on the way, handed a stick by Tay Too who asked him "just to give a hit and run away." He hit the deceased once on the head after which he ran away, leaving the other two behind. He did not know what happened then until he was arrested.

His Lordship, passing sentence, said that the accused had committed the most audacious offence. This bridge remains at La Mesa, for the use of the poor old man, others, a gift from Columbia Pictures Corporation. The agricultural

"WHAT WONDERFUL THING IT IS."

Mr. Justice McCardie and the Press.

"The Press of Britain—what a wonderful thing it is! It is, I sincerely believe, the greatest influence in the life of our British people," said Mr. Justice McCardie, in responding to the toast of "The Guests" at a ladies' night dinner of the London Press Club.

In Great Britain, he said, the Press absorbed the duties of priest, prophet, preacher, and Parliament. The great preachers of to-day were the editors of the daily newspapers. Parliament might mould opinion to a certain extent, but the supreme moulding of opinion was achieved by the Press.

People talked of literature as though it were distinct from the Press. But the newspapers of Great Britain were literature. "You may take a dozen books and read them, and then turn to the columns of the daily Press, and in style, in matter, in vision, in precision, and in touch the columns of the daily Press are equal to the finest literature that is produced."

"The Press of this country, if it will join with the Press of other countries, may be—aye, it is, in large measure—a magnificent instrument of international unity. From the depths of my heart I believe that the future peace of the world is dependent upon the Press of the world."

"The Crime of Punishment." February 14 was St. Valentine's Day, and the bachelor judge had something to say on the subject of marriage. A book he had recently looked at, he said, made him doubt whether he was qualified to be a judge. "No man," he read, "ought to sit as a judge unless he has served a sentence of at least six months in prison." (Laughter.)

That was a statement made in a most interesting book called "The Crime of Punishment," and who was it written by? It was written by a lady who was still a spinster. He recalled the words of a famous dramatist of over 200 years ago, who asserted that marriage was "inconsistent with the liberty of the subject." (Laughter.)

"Folks sometimes think we judges are hard men," he went on to say. "Well, we have to do our duty, and I am bound to say of my colleagues—and, I hope, of myself—we try to do our duty with absolute fearlessness."

Sir Nigel Playfair also replied to the toast of the guests, which was proposed by the chairman, Mr. P. E. Verstone.

Mr. A. Garland proposed the toast of the chairman.

BRITISH EQUIPMENT FOUND SATISFACTORY.

The fourth of the six cargo steamers ordered by the Cie. Gle. Transatlantique from Messrs. Harland and Wolff, Belfast, sailed from Havre on February 20; on her maiden trip to North Pacific. She is named San Jose.

Three vessels of the series, the San Antonio, San Diego, and San Francisco, have already been placed into service. The San Mateo and San Pedro will be delivered this month, and the addition of those six fine cargo steamers will mean a considerable improvement in the services of the C.G.T.

It is noteworthy that the fitting-out of the six vessels has afforded British industry a good opportunity of bringing prominently before its French clients the merits of its products.

SINGLE MEMBERS SPRING A SURPRISE AT K.C.C.

MACKAY'S FINE BATTING.

At the K.C.C. yesterday the Single XI defeated the Married XI by two wickets.

Battling first the Married XI soon lost Lawrence but a second wicket partnership between Brace and Smith added 69 runs before

Brace was clean bowled for 30, scored out of 85 runs. Not as aggressive as usual, Brace seemed content to await the loose ball and consequently hit only four boundaries. Smith left at 97 after having scored 35 as the result of good timing on the leg side. Included in his innings were six boundary hits. The only other batsman to offer serious opposition to the bowlers was the skipper of the side, J. C. Lyal. Going in with the score at 97 Lyal remained at the wickets whilst 84 runs were added, his own share being an invaluable contribution of 61. Playing forcing cricket he hit eleven 4's during his stay of under an hour, and with Crawley added 53 runs for the seventh wicket. Hung, during his second spell with the ball, captured 4 wickets for 35 runs.

Fifty Runs Behind.

Faced with the formidable total of 203 runs, Mackay and Skinner gave the Single XI a good start—58 runs being on the board before Mackay stepped in front of a straight delivery from Lyal when 35. Though not scoring a century, Mackay should be satisfied with his effort in that he displayed good strokes all-round the wicket and played the most polished innings of the match. Six 4's and a 3 were included in his innings. E. F. Fincher displayed a nice square cut when collecting his 33 runs, and remained at the wicket while 95 runs were added, being undefeated at the close of the innings at 153. Brace bowled well for his four victims, three of which were clean bowled, and was at times quite unplayable.

With only half an hour's play left the Married lost A. R. F. Raven in collecting 39 runs to give them the advantage of being 89 runs ahead with nine wickets standing.

SECOND DAY.

Only five runs had been added when Smith cocked up a catch to E. C. Fincher, and shortly afterwards Lee was clean bowled. Thus two good wickets had fallen for the addition of only 13 runs. A fourth wicket partnership between Crawley and Brace added 33 valuable runs, but with the fall of Crawley's wicket the bowling gained the upper hand and the innings closed for 128 runs. Brace in scoring 43 runs reached the boundary on eight occasions and scored his runs out of a total of 76. Bowling only three overs, Chadwick captured 3 wickets for 11 runs.

Opening Partnership.

Requiring 179 runs for victory Hung and Mackay scored 49 runs in quick time before the former was clean bowled for 24. Joined by E. F. Fincher, Mackay continued to bat well, though his timing was not as good as in his first innings, and it was not until 107 runs were on the board that Mackay was given out stumped.

Requiring but two runs for his half century Mackay hit seven boundaries. Fincher continued to score freely and in partnership with Skinner added 45 runs for the third wicket. Skinner hit a six off Brace and three 4's in his innings of 26. Four runs later Fincher was clean bowled by Goodwin for 47 runs. He played a careful innings, though he was very aggressive when anything loose came down, which included six 4's. Three wickets then fell in rapid succession but with the fall of Chadwick's wicket the scores were level, and Mead found little difficulty in collecting the necessary run for victory off the last ball of Brace's over. Undefeated at the close E. C. Fincher scored 23 runs in which were included three 4's and a 3. Coming on to bowl very late in the innings A. R. F. Raven returned the best bowling figures of 2 wickets for 21 runs. Goodwin during his second spell with the ball bowled four maiden overs, and conceded but one run for his wicket in five overs.

Owing to other more pressing engagements several players on both sides were unable to play yesterday but spectators very sportingly volunteered to take their places.

RACING.

LITTLE BEAVER SPRINGS A SURPRISE.

ZORHAN'S "COME-BACK."

Mr. "Benny" Proulx sprang a big surprise at Happy Valley on Saturday, when he piloted Little Beaver home to pay what must be nearly a record of over $360.
It looked all odds on "Johnny"
Heard taking the event on that good pony Cyclamen Bay. Mr.
Proulx, who surely is in his best form at the moment, was not to be denied. He pushed his mount through to win after Mr. Heard had apparently regarded the race
as safe.

It was obviously Mr. Proulx's day. Gay Crusader, which most people know can run if it likes,
was taken to the front in the penultimate event, and was not seriously challenged. The dividend was quite satisfactory.

Pacemaker, very aptly named,
made the pace in the Union Plate,
and came in to pay a pretty little dividend of $150 odd. Zorhan, who has been the subject of much cognition by students of form, literally walked away from the field in the second race to pay studious people $32.

Apollo, of course, did the necessary. The Dynasty "crack," Hetman, was apparently the only pony to give it a run over a mile.
Mr. Frost rode one of the finest races, one thinks, of his career, here. He nursed Apollo along in beautiful manner coming up to the Rock, and came away to win
in record time for China ponies.
The official return was 1 min.
57.4/5 secs., but Apollo was not really extended.

More Records.

King's Bounty, the most improved pony in training locally,
covered 161 lbs. to victory in record time in the next race. The weight does not appear to worry
Mr. Dynasty's pony at all, and it was obvious who would win from the word "Go." Royal Flush, lightly weighed, again disappointed, but nevertheless, will always be a contender for premier honours.
Congratulations are due to the handicappers, who had the form of the entries studied to a nicety.
It was one of the best day's racing seen at the Valley for a considerable time.

FORTUNE FOR FIVE-YEAR-OLD CHILD.

Merchant's Widow Leav $2,000,000.

A woman who was buried in the rose garden of her beautiful house, with the special request that her age should not be engraved on the coffin, and that it should for ever remain a secret, known only by her secretary and a few friends, has left a fortune of $2,000,000.

Mrs. Helen Stewart Hornby-Lewis, owner of the historic country seat of Danesfield, Medmenham, was the widow of the great Liverpool merchant, who was an early disciple of Tariff Reform.

Hundreds of thousands of pounds will be claimed by the Treasury as a result of her death, for, in addition to the usual duties, a special 10 per cent. legacy duty has to be paid, as the vast estate is passing out of the direct line of descendants.

The mansion at Marlow has been left to Major H. Beaumont, a nephew-in-law. A number of bequests of her servants and to various hospitals and institutions have been made.

It was always a great grief to Mrs. Hornby-Lewis that she had no children, and for many years she worked for the Waifs and Strays Society. It is understood that she has made a generous bequest to this institution.

In addition to owning Danesfield, Mrs. Hornby-Lewis had a chateau at Cannes, where she went to stay for three months every year. This is now for sale. The widowed woman also had a Park Lane house and a villa at Eastbourne.

Mrs. Hornby-Lewis, with her husband, played a great part in saving for the nation the "Seven Sisters," the famous beauty spot on the cliffs near Eastbourne, by a gift of £1,700. It was one of Mr. Hornby-Lewis' last public acts before he died.

A pretty little girl, not yet five years old, is the heiress to the larger proportion of the estate.

Jane Elizabeth Whitelaw is the prospective millionaire. She is the daughter of Mr. G. S. Whitelaw, the racehorse owner and trainer, of Court Hill, Letcombe Regis, near Wantage. She is the great-niece of Mrs. Hornby-Lewis.

The will is an exceptionally interesting and also somewhat complicated document.

It provides for little Jane Elizabeth assuming control of her fortune when she is twenty-five years old. She will be five this month. When she reaches her "majority" she will then also take over Danesfield, Medmenham, a wonderful house and gardens.

"Jane knows nothing about her fortune at the moment," said Mr. Whitelaw in an interview. "We heard about it some time ago, but we have not said anything to her, as we think she is too young."

"Mrs. Hornby-Lewis was my mother's sister. She was a member of the Reid Stewart family, and she, my mother and a third sister, the late Mrs. Miller inherited an immense fortune left in trust by her father."

"Jane already is an heiress to a large sum, and the money she will receive under Mrs. Hornby-Lewis' will make the total more than I think is good for such a young girl."

Mrs. Hornby-Lewis died two days before Christmas.

TWO CHICKENS AND A LOAF.

Exchanged For Pictures Worth $50,000.

Three "old masters," valued at $50,000, reputed to have been acquired for two chickens and a loaf of bread, have been found at Zawiercie, Poland.

One is Rembrandt's "Christ Before the High Priest," the second is Van-Dyck's "Miser," and the third is Correggio's, "Madonna," painted on tin and which, according to the experts who discovered and identified the paintings, was finished at the same time as Correggio's famous picture, "Ecce Homo."

The pictures are now the property of a schoolmaster, who bought them for £12 from the village shopkeeper, who, in turn, obtained them from a peasant. The peasant, thinking the paintings to be Holy Icons, obtained them from a famished soldier during the War for two chickens and a loaf.

"SOMETHING ADDED TO THE LAW."

Wife's Divorce Appeal Upheld.

Mrs. Lilian Woolf (nee Israel), of Woburn Mansions, Francis Street, W., appealed successfully before the Master of the Rolls and Lords Justices Lawrence and Borer, against a judgment of the President (Lord Merrivale), in the Divorce Court, dismissing her petition for the dissolution of her marriage with Mr. Eric Bowers Woolf, on the ground of his adultery at the Rock Gardens Hotel, Bognor, in July, 1929, with a woman unknown.

Mrs. Woolf was now granted a decree nisi.

Mr. Woolf left his wife in January, 1929, and in July, 1929, she received a letter from him addressed from Bognor.

Mrs. Woolf's solicitors wrote to Mr. Woolf saying that the letter did not prove what was necessary for a divorce and asking for the name of the woman, but Mr. Woolf refused. The petition eventually came before Lord Merrivale who, in his judgment, said there was formal evidence which would justify a finding of adultery if the Court thought it meant that adultery had been committed.

Mr. Woolf was apparently a respectable Jew tradesman who had separated from his wife. He desired to have the marriage dissolved, and he and a woman named resorted to an hotel, and a chamber maid saw them.

But there was no evidence to show that Mr. Woolf was likely to be guilty of promiscuous adultery. He (Lord Merrivale) did not find that adultery was proved, and dismissed the petition.

"The Only Question."

Mr. Rayner Goddard, K.C. (for Mrs. Woolf), said the first ground of appeal was that Lord Merrivale referred adultery on evidence certainly not less strong—and he would say, considerably stronger—than had been habitually received in the Divorce Division and the Ecclesiastical Courts for the last 100 years.

There was not, and never had been, the smallest suggestion of collusion.

But there was a practice now, requiring stringent inquiries to be made as to the name of the woman.

"This case has been brought," continued Mr. Goddard, "as it is of considerable interest to the public to know how far the requirements of the Court are justified."

Mr. Goddard added that Lord Merrivale had taken the view that there was no evidence of inclination.

"Adding to the Law."

The Master of the Rolls, giving judgment, said the parties to a suit must not be followed to obtain divorce by devices which prevented a true knowledge of the facts coming before the Court.

"At the same time," he added, "we have to administer the law as laid down. If we were merely dealing with a question of discretion by the President, who has an unrivaled experience in dealing with these cases, we should hesitate before altering his decision."

"But, it appears that the President has super-added something to the law, and it was on that question that the appeal came before the Court."

"Mr. Woolf, who was engaged in business in Regent Street, was found spending a week-end with a woman at a seaside hotel. The Court ought to be satisfied that adultery had been committed."

The appeal was allowed, and Mr. Woolf was granted a decree nisi, with costs against her husband. It was agreed that the decree nisi should be made absolute within 14 days.

EINSTEIN'S NEW THEORY.

"Symmetrical Spherical Space Not Possible."

Pasadena, Calif., Feb. 4.

Professor Albert Einstein astounded the world-famous astronomers of the Mount Wilson Observatory to-day with the announcement of a new conception of cosmology resulting from his new unified field theory.

"The old symmetrical spherical space theory isn't possible under new equations," he told the scientists.

The last part of his talk was devoted to explaining the unified field theory.

His announcement swept aside his original hypothesis on cosmology. While he did not elaborate further, the astronomers said he indicated his acceptance of the theory of Dr. Richard Chase Tolman, of Pasadena, of a non-static, expanding universe.

TRADING IN 'FORGED' CURRENCY.

Alleged Gang of Cheats Arrested.

Following protracted inquiries and investigation, the Singapore Detective Branch has effected the arrest of four Chinese and a Eurasian, who are alleged to belong to a clever gang which had been duping would-be buyers of forged currency notes in Singapore for some time past.

The method employed, it is said, was to pack sheets of plain white paper, cut to the size of currency notes and sandwich them between two genuine notes. During recent months two such cases were brought to light and the operators of this ingenious fraud have received terms of imprisonment.

It is alleged that the accused in the present case adopted similar methods but fell into a trap set by Detective Inspector Judge. At about 8 o'clock on a Tuesday night, Detective Inspector Judge with Detective Kamla and a party of plain clothes men effected the arrest of two Chinese who gave their names as Teo Kee Joo and Tan Ah

Nghee. About 4 o'clock the following morning two more Chinese and a Eurasian were arrested by the same party at a house in Jalan Besar, said to be the headquarters of the gang. The latter trio gave their names as Lim Pang Kang, Chua Ah Ngho and Dickson Panglar.

In connection with the arrest of Teo Kee Joo and Tan Ah Nghee, Detective Inspector Judge seized a large quantity of white paper cut to the size of five dollar notes and a tied up bundle of similar paper between two genuine five dollar notes.

Teo Kee Joo and Tan Ah Nghee were produced before Mr. G. E. Clayton, the Singapore Second Police Magistrate by Mr. E. Tongue, head of the Detective Branch, and were charged with attempted cheating by falsely pretending to sell 1,000 forged five-dollar notes for $700.

Lim Pang Kang, Chua Ah Ngho and Dickson Panglar were charged with the abetment of the offence of attempted cheating. Teo Kee Joo was further charged with being in unlawful possession of a dagger.

Bail in the sum of $1,000 was allowed.—Straits Times.

The Cause of 90 % of Ill-Health.

The condition of your blood is the condition of your health. That is an incontrovertible fact. The blood stream is the life stream, and disease can retain no foothold in a perfectly healthy blood stream.

Though a certain percentage of ill-health may be due to organic defects, it can be safely asserted that at least ninety per cent. is due to imperfections in the blood supply, either deficiency in quantity or quality.

Pallor and emaciation, weakness and debility, neurasthenia, neuralgia and nervous troubles, generally, dyspepsia and rheumatism, depression and morbidities, and those ailments which particularly afflict women, are directly traceable to anaemic conditions, or blood impoverishment.

Palliative measures, which give temporary relief from the symptoms, are useless. The only satisfactory treatment is to go to the basic cause and build up the blood. Once the blood is made rich, red and abundant, nature is possessed of the only weapon she needs to combat the ailment, and the cure takes place rapidly in nature's own way.

The finest remedy for building up the blood ever offered to the public, acclaimed all over the world by people who have tried and proved it, is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. For forty years, people who have suffered from ailments resulting from impoverished blood, have been sending enthusiastic letters of thanks for the priceless benefits they have received from this splendid blood and nerve tonic. Start a course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills today, and prove their merits for yourself.

RUSSIA ANGRY.

ANTI-SOVIET CAMPAIGN IN JAPAN?

STRONG PROTESTS.

Tokyo, Saturday.
Asserting the existence of an organised anti-Soviet campaign in Japan in connection with the fishery and rouble questions, and demanding a full enquiry, the Soviet has strongly protested against Amikieff's shooting for a second time.

Baron Shidehara is expected to reply shortly, denying the allegations. The Government appears to regard the protest as meant for Soviet home consumption, therefore it will not be taken seriously.

All the evidence goes to show that the assailant was a disgruntled concession hunter actuated purely by personal motives, and who had no connection with any organisation, and his deed had no political significance. —Reuter.

[An earlier message stated:—Receiving no reply to the official protest to Japan in connection with the shooting of Amikieff, the Soviet Commercial Counselor in Tokyo on March 16, the Soviet Deputy Foreign Commissar has approached the Japanese Ambassador, asking that he be informed at an early date as to what measures the Japanese Government proposed to take to prevent a recurrence of anti-Soviet acts.]

AIR MAIL FLIGHT.

15,000 LETTERS FOR AUSTRALIA.

15 DAYS IN TRANSIT.

London, Saturday.
Fifteen thousand letters left Croydon to-day on a nine-ton air liner in the first official England to Australia air mail, scheduled to reach Port Darwin on April 19. They will be transferred to an Australian machine for distribution.

A machine is also carrying 35,000 letters for India, Central Africa, and Malaya at a postage rate of sixteen pence per half ounce. The return mail will leave Port Darwin on April 27.—Reuter.

ACROSS ASIA.

CITROEN EXPEDITION TO PEKING.

5,000 MILE TREK.

Beirut, Saturday.
An unusual caravan of eight semi-caterpillar trailer cars, forming the Haardt-Derbeul Citroen expedition, started to-day on a 5,000 mile trek across Asia to Peking via Bagdad, Teheran, and Pampirs.

The expedition, which is equipped with wireless and cinema cameras, consists of 40 Frenchmen and one American. The latter represents the National Geographical Society of Washington.—Reuter.

SNOWLESS PEAKS.

INTERESTING DISCOVERY IN THE ARCTIC.

Oslo, Saturday.
Lofy, snowless peaks are reported to have been discovered in the Arctic between longitudes 27 and 85 West by a Norwegian Government whaling inspector, just returned from the herding grounds. He has handed details and photographs to the Government.—Reuter.

ELGIN MARBLES.

QUESTION OF THEIR RETURN TO GREECE.

The Revue des Deux Mondes publishes an interesting article by M. Robert de La Sizeranne on the Elgin Marbles. The question of whether the British Government should feel a moral obligation to return the Elgin Marbles to Greece arouses greater interest and is more frequently discussed in Continental countries than it is in Britain.

The word Elginisme is current in the French and has equivalent in the German and Italian languages, while it would be understood by a comparatively restricted class in Britain. It is therefore interesting to find a man of M. de La Sizeranne's authority and distinction writing at great length to demonstrate that on all ethical and aesthetic grounds the Elgin Marbles should remain in the British Museum.

M. de La Sizeranne does not pretend to ignore the possibility that the return of the Elgin Marbles to Greece would create an uncomfortable precedent for France. He admits that large proportion of the artistic treasures in the possession of the French nation were acquired through negotiations no more above suspicion than those undertaken by Lord Elgin. His arguments rest, however, on a more solid basis than that of mere expediency.

Not Appreciated.

All that Lord Elgin wished to do and succeeded in doing was to save what little was left of the sculptures which had once adorned the Acropolis from the iconoclasm of the Turks and the uncertainties of war and revolution. Upon their arrival in Britain the Marbles were by no means appreciated at their true artistic value, and it was only when, at the conclusion of the peace, such men as Goethe and Canova visited Burlington House that the understanding of the charges of vandalism and immorality brought against Lord Elgin were also, he points out, exclusively of British origin.

M. de La Sizeranne dismisses no less emphatically the arguments of those critics who claim that a work of art can only be properly appreciated in the setting for which it was designed. It is obviously impossible to create to-day a setting which would even faintly suggest that for which the sculpture of Pheidias was intended: they can be as well appreciated and judged in Bloomsbury as they could be in an Athens museum, and in the Bloomsbury they are at least better assured against destruction by war or revolution.

SUEZ CANAL.

Protest Against High Dues.

At a meeting of the Council of the British Chamber of Commerce held on February 12 it was decided to forward a resolution to the British Government, as the largest individual shareholders in the Suez Canal, protesting against the high dues, which hamper European trade in the Far East.

It was pointed out that in 1929 these dues were expended in the ratio of 40 per cent. for upkeep, depreciation and improvements and 60 per cent. in dividends. Holders of shares valued at 250 francs par received 530 francs in dividend after the deduction of French taxes.

COLOUR BAR.

INDIANS NOT TO ENTER OLYMPIC GAMES.

ART OF COACHING.

Bloemfontein, Yesterday.
The annual meeting of the South African Amateur Athletic Association to-day acceded to the request of Mr. J. H. Viljoen, the well-known athlete, for monetary assistance of £100 yearly for three years to enable him to go to America to study the art of coaching.

Mr. Viljoen maintains that if he studies coaching he will be far more useful to South Africa for the next Olympic Games than by remaining in the Union.

In reference to the holding of the Empire Games in South Africa in 1934, the Association has decided to uphold "the colour bar" and, in view of the conditions existing in the Union, not to permit athletes from countries like India and the West Indies to participate, "even at the risk of appearing discourteous."—Reuter.

JAPANESE PREMIER.

MR. HAMAGUCHI TO BE OPERATED ON.

RETURN TO HOSPITAL.

Tokyo, Saturday.
Political observers are attaching significance to the visits by foreign and other Ministers to Mr. Hamaguchi, following a medical examination of the Premier, whose condition is ambiguously described as "confined to bed and recovering very slowly if not actually growing worse." It is expected that Mr. Hamaguchi will return to hospital for an operation to-morrow.

Not Serious.

The Premier's condition, according to a bulletin, is not serious, and he is expected to be able to leave the hospital in a fortnight. Therefore it is decided unnecessary to appoint a Premier in the interim. The operation required is for the removal of internal adhesions resulting from his wounding on November 14.—Reuter.

HEROIC ACT.

YOUTH SAVES CHILDREN FROM FREEZING.

TO SEE THE PRESIDENT.

Washington, Saturday.
An American youth aged 13, named Bryan Untiedt, who stripped himself of his underclothes in order to warm the younger children freezing with him in a lorry marooned in a snowdrift in Colorado last Saturday, has been invited by President Hoover to the White House for his personal congratulations.

Five of the children perished and the remainder of 20 are progressing well in hospital.—Reuter's American Service.

JAPANESE 'QUAKE.

INHABITANTS FLEE FROM ERUPTION.

Osaka, Saturday.
Kuchierabo Island, Kagoshima Prefecture, erupted on Thursday night, the inhabitants taking refuge in neighbouring villages. Details are not yet available, owing to the lack of communications.—Reuter.
